My daughter loves unicorns, what's a better place to take them than here.

It was a cute cafe with lots of pastels, unicorn paintings and unicorn statues. Went on a Sunday late afternoon and there was a waitlist for a table. We waited about 30 mins. Got one of the house booth. It was nice. We were able to look around and take bunch of pictures. I noticed there were a lot of emptied tables on the very top floor.

Took a while to get our menus and one page was missing in one of the paper menu. We ordered only drinks and dessert. Got the waffle ($11), hot chocolate ($5.5) and ube latte ($3.5). Hmm I expected a bit more wow but it was basic, mediocre waffles. The ube was good, different. The hot chocolate was cute but really sweet. There were utensils in a jar on the table but I found it dirty when you look in it. I had to wave down the server a few times and asked for cups of water and napkins. In the women's washroom, it was messy. The toilet paper roll was on the floor so I didn't even use it.

Overall it was good, one time experience. Food was okay, service could have been better. My daughter enjoyed it.
